EXPLOSION ON CARNEGIE SHIP KILLS CAPTAIN

Scientific Yacht is Total Loss
From Gasoline Disaster
Cause Unknown

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—(IN S).—The non magnetic yacht Carnegie, of the Carnegie Institute, was a total loss as the result of a gasoline explosion in Apia Harbor, Samoa yesterday at 1:40 p. m. which caused the death of Capt. J. P. Ault and the injury to four members of the crew, according to a message received by the institute today. A cabin boy is missing.

The message, which came from W. C. Parkinson, senior scientific officer, said that two of the injured were the mechanic and the engineer, the latter's name was said at the institute to be Sturk. The sailing master, Frickson, whose wife lives in New York, was slightly injured.

Parkinson's message said: "Deeply regret to report destruction of vessel due to gasoline explosion. Capt. Ault succumbed to injuries. Four of the crew in hospital, cabin boy missing. All others safe."

There were 25 officers and crew on board. A second despatch amplified the first and said the explosion occurred at 1:40 p. m. yesterday, the fire spreading so rapidly that there was no possible chance to salvage any of the equipment. The naval tug at Samoa was expected to arrive this morning to give whatever aid possible.

Messages reaching here from Apia failed to state the cause of the explosion, but described in some detail the force of the blast which hurled Captain Ault overboard and split the ship from stem to stern.

While broke out immediately, and while desperate efforts were made by members of the crew to save the yacht and the valuable scientific instruments aboard it, the blaze swept beyond control and spread to a number of other craft in the harbor.

Dispatches said that five other vessels were destroyed by the flames, but their size and value was not given. Judging by the rapidity with which the fire spread after the explosion, it was apparently a miracle that no more lives were lost.

The disaster brought to a sudden and unexpected end the 20 years of terrestrial wanderings of the Carnegie, the only vessel of its kind in the world. Since it was built in 1902, the yacht has sailed the seven seas, its expedition compelling voluminous and valuable data with regard to atmospheric magnetism, its peculiar non-metallic construction permitting experiments to be made which would have been impossible aboard any other kind of ordinary vessel.

Three other members of the crew beside Captain Ault sustained injuries in battling the blaze, according to reports. Eric Stenstrom, who fought bravely in an effort to save the ship's apparatus, as said to have been badly burned, while the others suffered less serious injuries.

The Carnegie was on a three-year cruise which started from Washington last spring. She carried a party of 17 scientists and a crew sufficient to man her 12,900 net of said. The ship was bright-line rigged, but also carried an auxiliary engine developing 150 horsepower.

IRWIN NAMED HEALTH HEAD

Succeeds Late Noah Bolender
Holman Elected to Heffner's Job

Dr. A. W. Holman was elected at a meeting of the county health board at the Pickaway-co auditor's office to fill the unexpired term of Dr. G. W. Heffner, who sent his resignation to the board Friday as health officer because of ill health.

Dr. Samuel Irwin, Tarleton, was named by the board to succeed the late Noah Bolender as president of the health board.

Miss Mary Van Kleck, director of Industrial Studies of the Russell Sage Foundation, was appointed by the National Commission on Law Enforcement at Washington, to make a survey of housing and unemployment as it relates to crime.

Mercury At Zero Breaks All City Weather Records

All records were shattered here Saturday, when the thermometer dropped to a shade below zero, which is the coldest Nov. 30, in the history of the local weather bureau.

One more degree decline in the mercury, and the radios will be moved to the furnace rooms, along with the feather ticks, and electric pads, and everybody for himself.

Traffic in Circleville Friday and Saturday was confined to three kinds of vehicles. These were milk wagons, coal trucks, and service cars. Off in the quiet Friday night a frozen motor went steaming by, with the driver entirely concealed in a frozen interior.

The 4:30 a. m. barrage Saturday heard in different parts of the city, was milk bottles popping their caps, which were discovered at all angles, perched on top of the frozen cream.

DUNTON WILL NAMES WIDOW

Mrs. Florence Dunton Also Named Executrix of Late
Physician's Estate

The will of the late Dr. Oscar H. Dunton filed in probate court Saturday provides that all real and personal property should go to the widow, Mrs. Florence Dunton, and that she be named executrix of the estate.

The document was written in 1921 and was witnessed by Barton Walters and Melvin Runhart. Fred Nicholas, D. V. Courtwright and Noah G. Spangler were appointed appraisers of the estate.

MRS. PETERS IS SUMMONED

Widow of Dr. W. L. Peters
Dies Saturday at Home
Of Complications

Belle L. Peters, 74, widow of Dr. Wilson L. Peters, died Saturday at 8:45 a. m. from complications at her home on W. Franklin st. She was the daughter of Joel and Lydia Coulson Beckwith, and born February 7, 1855.

On October 16, 1879 at Nebraska, O., she was married to Dr. W. L. Peters. There were no children. Mrs. Peters is survived by a half brother, Arthur Peters, four nieces, Ruth Beckwith of this city, George White, Sadie Seidenstucker, and Rachel Madden and two nephews, Barrett Beckwith and Roy Beckwith.

Mrs. Peters was a loyal member of the Methodist church here and the minister, the Rev. Franklin McElfresh will conduct the funeral services Monday at 2 p. m. at the residence. Burial will be made in Forest cemetery, under the direction of the Albaugh Co.

Mrs. Sarah Warner and grandson, Melvin, of Stoutsville, spent Thanksgiving with her son, Lawrence Warner and family of E. Main-st.

LOCAL WOMAN LEADS XMAS SEAL SALES

County Health League Ready To Open Christmas Anti-
Tuberculosis Campaign

Pickaway-co has taken an advance step in the interest of health by organizing a County Health League, which takes in the sale of Christmas seals and the anti-tuberculosis work of the county. Mrs. D. V. Courtwright, who has been at the head of the work for several years, is again the president and Mrs. Fannie Kirk, of New Holland, is the executive secretary.

This organization is the outgrowth of the Circleville Benevolent Society, which has sponsored the sale of Christmas seals and the health work of the city and county for many years.

Through the efforts of the Circleville Benevolent Association, the city board of health was urged to employ the city nurse, that the Christmas seal money might be used more directly to aid in the fight against tuberculosis. The Christmas seal money in the city and county has been used with children in the schools but this year they hope to work with those who are afflicted with the disease.

At a conference of the Ohio Public Health League in Columbus, the officers of the county league learned that in the state Pickaway-co stands second in the number of deaths from tuberculosis.

It is in the interest of this startling fact that this Pickaway-co Public Health League sends out the Christmas seals this year.

Those women, who are a part of the organization are as follows: Mrs. D. V. Courtwright, Circleville, president; Mrs. Maude Foster, Circleville, vice president; Mrs. Horace Peters, Walnut-twp; Mrs. Fannie Kirk New Holland, executive secretary; Mrs. William Ulm, Circleville, treasurer; Mrs. William Spangler, Salt-creek-twp, chairman; Mrs. Bernard Young, Pickaway-twp, chairman; Mrs. Clarence McAbee, W. a y n e-twp, chairman; Mrs. James Szwaring, Jackson-twp; chairman; Mrs. Milton Carpenter, Muhlenberg-twp chairman; Mrs. John Bolender, Washington-twp; Mrs. Hosier, Ashville; Miss Ethel Baum, Harrison-twp; Mrs. Florence Dennis, Scioto-twp; Mrs. James Stump, Liberty-twp; Miss Mary Porter, New Holland; Mrs. Harry Dunlap, Deer-creek-twp and Mrs. Stanley Glick, Circleville-twp.

Do your Christmas shopping so that you can mail your gifts, greetings and letters to relatives, friends and loved ones at least a week or 10 days before Christmas according to the distance. This will not only make it certain that they are received on or before Christmas, but will be a great aid to your postal service and to postal employees and enable them to spend Christmas with their families.

All parcels should be wrapped securely and packet tightly using strong paper and heavy twine. Umbrellas, canes and golf sticks should be reinforced by strips of wood their full length tightly wrapped and tied or otherwise sufficiently wrapped to withstand transportation. Other articles should be wrapped accordingly.

Addresses should be complete, with house number of name of street, postoffice box or rural route number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if the tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

4 KILLED IN BOSTON FIRE

Fireman Found Dead With Child, Also Dead, In His Arms—$75,000 Damage

BOSTON, Nov. 30.—(INS).—Four persons were burned to death and four others were badly injured today when fire swept through a five story lodging house.

The dead: Fire Captain Florence Sullivan of engine 32, Charlestown found on the second floor of the burning building clasp in his arms the body of a girl whom he was apparently trying to save when smoke overcame him.

Mrs. Nellie Woodworth, 45, and her 13-year-old daughter, who was in the arms of Captain Sullivan.

An unidentified woman. A short time before a four-alarm fire had destroyed the Eliot Congregational church in Roxbury with the severe injury to Fireman Coleman Curran.

Across the Charles River in Cambridge fire swept the Inman theatre, menacing the Inman Square district of Cambridge, doing $75,000 damage, causing a general alarm and driving a score of families to the street carrying their belongings in zero temperature.

ARREST MAN ON SUPPORT CHARGE

Maurice Cutler, Columbus, who is wanted in Circleville on a non-support charge was arrested by Sheriff Davis Friday. He is in the county jail pending a hearing before Justice E. C. Fricke.

Work Begins on Legion Auxiliary Three Act Play "See You Later"

Jimmie Mason, director for the Triangle Producing Co., has arrived in Circleville in preparation for the three-act musical comedy "See You Later" which the Auxiliary to the American Legion will present at the Memorial Hall on Dec. 6.

Mr. Mason expressed himself as elated over the members of the cast which he has already met and feels sure that he can get the play into shape without any delay. He says that it has been his experience that often a city of this size does not have the necessary talent but in no small city he has secured talented actors in Circleville.

Among the cast will be Miss

The Real Thing and Legally Made For Medicinal Purposes Only

Walther, president of the American Medicinal Spirits Co. and C. E. Hoeger, superintendent of the Medicinal Spirits Co. plant, supervising the weighing and labelling of the first barrel of whiskey which was made with Federal sanction in Kentucky since 1917.

Local Postmaster Makes Appeal To Public to Avoid Christmas Rush

With the well known fact that at holiday time the volume of mail increases more than 200 percent it is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days.

Therefore to assure delivery of Christmas presents, cards and letters by Christmas Day, George B. Foreman, local postmaster, urgently requests that the public of Circleville should shop and mail early in order to avoid the Christmas rush.

Do your Christmas shopping so that you can mail your gifts, greetings and letters to relatives, friends and loved ones at least a week or 10 days before Christmas according to the distance. This will not only make it certain that they are received on or before Christmas, but will be a great aid to your postal service and to postal employees and enable them to spend Christmas with their families.

3 MEN JOIN SELECT CLUB

Cromley, Orient Farm And
McCoy Raise 100 Bushels
Of Corn Per Acre

Three Pickaway-co farmers have completed their records in the "One Hundred Bushel Corn Club." Homer Cromley, Harrison-twp, using Johnson-co. White made a yield field measure of 125 bushel per acre. This yield when reduced to a 20 percent moisture test gave a final yield of 113.15 bushel of shelled corn per acre.

The Orient State farm, Salt-creek-twp, using clarge, made a yield field measure of 123.37 bushel which when reduced to the moisture content gave a final yield of 120 bushel of shelled corn per acre.

Frederick McCoy, Monroe-twp, using a mixed variety obtained a yield field measure of 91.10 bushel. This yield when reduced gave a final yield of $322 bushel of shelled corn per acre.

On each of these plots complete fertilizer was used in the hill at planting time. A broadcast application of either 0-20-0 or 0-14-6, at a rate of 200 to 250 pounds per acre during the last filling operation prior to seeding was made. When the corn was about ten inches high an application of 100 pounds of nitrate soda was used as a side dressing.

The average yield of corn for the county as a whole will run approximately 40 bushels per acre. The "One Hundred Bushel Corn Club" results demonstrate a few of the possibilities yet untapped by the average corn producer.

Ruth Holman, Miss Margie Hunsicker, Howard White, Charles Goeller, "Shanty" Kirwin, Joe Rooney, Evan Phillips, Lawrence Mack and Bob Maloney, all of whom have had parts in other home talent plays and have effected themselves very creditably. Rehearsals have started and are being held in regularly every afternoon and evening at the Memorial Hall.

Miss Iona Miller will be the pianist for the production. Miss Miller's ability is well-known as she has played for the high school orchestra for a number of years and was also pianist for the recent play "Aunt Lucia" which the C. A. C. presented.

OHIO SHIVERS UNDER CHILL OF BLIZZARDS

Weather Forecasters Predict
Weather to Shoot Upward
Toward Evening

Ohio shivered and shook under the penetrating chill of near-zero weather today which rode through the state on the tail of a blinding blizzard, taking the first tolls, casualties and suffering of the winter.

While relief was promised from the storm which blustered down from the Hudson Bay region in Canada, bringing with it the lowest November temperatures in history, hospitals, police stations and charitable institutions were full to overflowing with the poor seeking relief from the wintry blasts and with frost-bitten and injured persons.

In northern Ohio the mercury shot down to one degree above zero from one to seven a. m., today. Some regions, however, reported even sub-zero temperatures. Weather forecasters predicted that with today's clearing weather the mercury would struggle upward a few degrees.

Traffic which has been paralyzed attempted to pull back the heavy snow blanket left by the blizzard and get under way again. It still moved like a sick child, however. Trains were running as much as 45 minutes late.

The cold wave took a toll of at least two deaths in Cleveland, while scores of minor accidents occurred over the state on ice-sheathed streets and sidewalks.

Shipping conditions on Lake Erie were badly hampered by the blizzard and operators stated today that in all probability the season will be forced to shut down early because of reports of ice blockades in St. Mary's river.

Hendrysbury, Ohio, reported a large in eastern Ohio, reported a temperature of six degrees below zero. St. Clairsville thermometers read five below, and throughout that entire district temperatures were from two degrees below to four above.

The temperature at the Ohio Experiment station at Wooster was two below. It was the lowest mark recorded there in November during the 40 years records have been kept.

Bowling Green, in the northwest district of the state, experienced its lowest November temperature on record. The official government instruments of Dr. H. B. Whitesell, there, record zero.

New Lexington reported that all early winter records for 30 years were broken when the thermometer registered two below on Perry-co hills and five below in the lowlands.

At Marysville, the temperature dropped to one degree below zero, and according to older citizens there, it is the coldest November weather in 40 years.

Columbus thermometers showed a temperature of one degree above. A death was recorded there and was attributed indirectly to the cold as were nearly a score of fires within the past 24 hours. A negro, Troy Brooks, was overcome by gas in his room. He died from the effects of the fumes.

Charles Sponseller, 25, of Akron, was found unconscious in his room at a Columbus Hotel. He had been overcome by fumes from a gas stove. He was rushed to St. Francis hospital there where he is recovering.

Approximately $9,000 loss was sustained by A. E. Kiner when fire destroyed his Linden home.

BIBLE CLASSES MEET AT U. B.

The four adult Bible classes of the Methodist Episcopal church have been invited to be guests of the United Brethren adult Bible school on Sunday, Dec. 1. The Methodist classes will meet at 9 a. m. and go in a body to the United Brethren church at 9:15.

The visitors are hoping to have 100 members to attend the Sunday school services at the neighboring church.

PREPARE FOR GRID SUPPER

D. B. Clark, Kenton, to Deliver
Address at Kiwanis
Party Monday

Members and coach of the Circleville high school football squad, and coaches and captains of the teams at Ashville, Williamsport and Walnut-twp are looking forward to the Kiwanis club rabbit supper at the Elks club Monday evening when D. B. Clark, superintendent of schools at Kenton, O., a former coach and instructor here, will be the principal speaker.

The Kiwanis club has worked out a scheme which is certain to result in enough rabbits being raised to supply the supper. Sheriff Frank Davis has been named chairman of the committee to get the bunnies. Prosecuting Attorney Emmitt L. Crist will help him, and Rev. Ben C. DeCamp will also go along. Crist will issue an injunction to prevent the rabbits from running; Davis will serve it and Rev. DeCamp will see to it that these rabbits get to the place where all good rabbits go.

The time for the beginning of the evening's activities has been set for 6:30 p. m.

COUNTY CO-OP FIFTH IN OHIO

Ships 62 Decks of Livestock
In October, According To Manager Briggs

Pickaway-co farmers ranked fifth in the state in October in marketing livestock cooperatively when 62 decks were sold, according to an announcement by Harry J. Briggs, manager of the county association.

A million pounds more livestock was marketed cooperatively in Ohio during October than has been marketed any other month this year according to statewide reports.

The total amount marketed was 15,762,467 pounds valued at $1,572,645. Shipments represented 8,600 farmers and totaled 1,140 decks. Sixty thousand hogs, 18,000 sheep, 4,000 calves and 2,300 cattle were included in the shipments.

SEIDEL TO SPEAK AT ELKS MEMORIAL

John F. Seidel, prominent Columbus lawyer, will deliver the principal address at the county Elks' Memorial services at the local Elks home Sunday. The program starts at 2:30 p. m.

Music by the versatile Elks chorus will be a part of the program. The public is invited.

COMMANDER IS FIRST TO FLY O'ER 2 POLES

Amundsen, Capt. Scott, Only
Other Two Men to Reach
Southern Extreme

NEW YORK, Nov. 31.—Commander Richard E. Byrd was today hailed by the world as the first man ever to have flown across both the North and South poles.

Last night, the New York Times, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and newspapers affiliated with them in publishing reports from Commander Byrd's Antarctic expedition, announced that the commander had safely returned to his base, Little America, after a successful flight across the South pole in which he surveyed much adjacent territory.

Three years and seven months before, in May, 1926, the intrepid pioneer of air exploration started the world by flying across the North Pole with the late Floyd Bennett at the controls of his plane.

The commander and three companions, Pilot Bernt Balchen, aerial Surveyor Capt. Ashley Mc Kinley and Harold G. Gatty, who manned the radio, left their base at 3:29 p. m. Thursday (10:19 P. M. N. Y. Time), according to the New York Times, on the 1,600 mile flight to the South Pole and return in a trimotorized Ford plane.

In returning to their base without mishap, they accomplished one of the most hazardous flights in history, braving the unknown perils of the Antarctic wasteland to the goal which only two other expeditions had ever succeeded in attaining.

The first man actually to reach the South Pole was Roald Amundsen, the dauntless Norwegian, who lost his life in June, 1928, when he set out in a plane in the hope of rescuing members of the ill-fated Italia expedition in the Arctic.

AMUNDSEN FIRST
Amundsen reached the South Pole on Dec. 14, 1911 using the ordinary dog-sled method of Arctic and Antarctic exploration. He lived to fly over the North Pole and until Byrd's latest feat was the only man to have seen both poles.

The second expedition to reach the South Pole was that led by the Englishman Capt. Robert F. Scott, who reached his goal on Jan. 18, 1912 but lost his life in attempting to return to civilization.

Commander Byrd's flight to the South Pole climaxes the efforts of the most prententious expedition ever undertaken.

The expedition, consisting of 66 men, each a specialist in his line, 100 trained Esquimaux dogs, four airplanes and two years' supply of goods got underway in October, 1928.

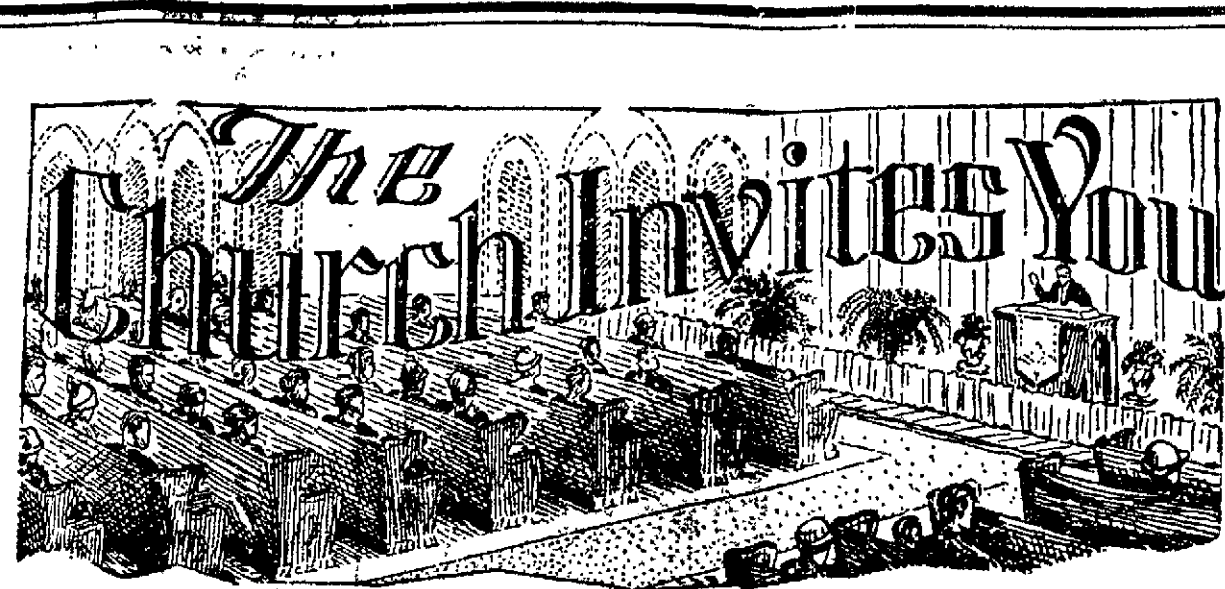

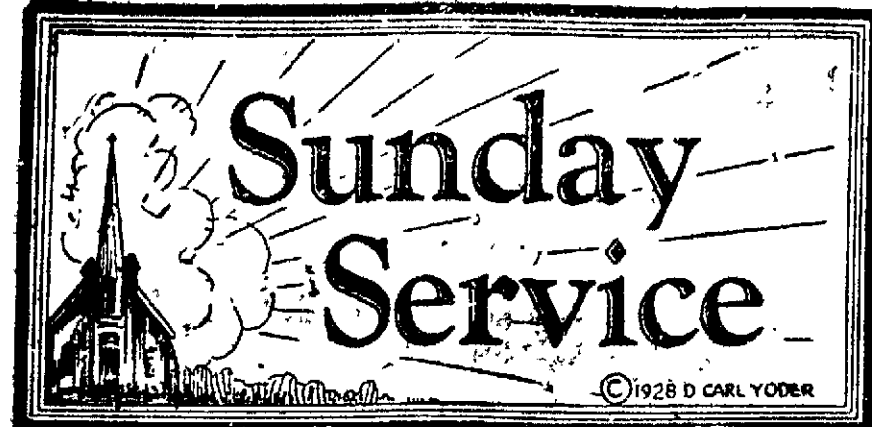

Commander Byrd sailed from Los Angeles on the whaling steamer C. A. Larsen on Oct. 10, 1928. The steamship New York, flagship of the expedition, had sailed from Hoboken on Aug. 10. The Eleanor Bolling, another vessel of the expedition, also sailed from New York, while the Whaler Sir John Ross carried supplies.

After a rendezvous at New Zealand where all the ships met, Commander Byrd board the flagship and the expedition sailed to Little America, Antarctica, where the main camp was established.

Since then, the expedition has been in constant radio communication with the outside world, although for almost six months its members were secluded in their (Turn to Page 3, Please)

MIDDIES AND SKIRTS?

The latest effort of the schools to unify customs is that of having the girls wear middies and skirts to school. Many schools have already adopted the plan and find it successful. The following are opinions of the heads of our school organizations:

Dean White: "I do not think the idea will be a success. The girls will not forfeit their privilege to 'look pretty' in their present fancy school dresses."

Dorothy Reigel: "I like the idea very much. Other schools have made it successful and I don't see why C. H. S. can't."

Ruth Carothers: "I do not think the girls will approve of the monotony of the middie and skirt movement."

Malcolm Russel: "I think the plan would be fair to all as no girl would be called 'queen' because of her superior dress. The plan could give each girl an equal chance to look her best."

Doris Peters: "I admire the uniformity of middies and skirts, but I would rather not have it as it curbs individuality."

Howard Greeno: "I favor the movement because I think it would present a better appearance and improve the health conditions. It would make for higher scholastic standing, because the styles of today detract the mind of the student from his work."

Virginia Richey: "I think it is a good idea and I hope C. H. S. will boost it."

A Radio Sermon Not Sufficient.
Dr. Charles R. Brown, former dean of Yale Divinity school, says, "The difference between listening to a radio sermon and going to church is the same as the difference between calling a girl on the telephone and spending the evening with her."
"Most persons who tune in on radio sermons are religious quitters; doubtless some of them think they are doing God a favor by listening in, but they are of no positive good in the community."
"The Bible does not say that God so loved the world that he telephoned down the good news. He sent his only begotten son to die." Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

A Mansion or a Shack
Mrs. Smith, a wealthy member of a leading city church, died and with considerable questioning was allowed to pass through the pearly gates, so the story goes. She asked St. Peter to conduct her to the promised mansion.

In passing beautiful places she inquired who occupied them. "Mrs. Murphy lives in that house," said St. Peter, "she came from your city." "Why, yes," replied Mrs. Smith, "she used to be my landlady. "And in that attractive place, lives Sandy McDonald, another resident of your city. "Is that so?" she replied, "he used to be my gardener."

"And over there in that neat palace, lives Rose Wilson, a very sweet girl." "Is it possible, why she used to be my maid," responded the lady.

Soon they came to a shack and St. Peter said, "This is your mansion." "But-but," stammered the lady, "how does it happen that my former servants have so much better places than I?"

St. Peter replied "It's this way, Mrs. Smith, all the material we can use to build the mansions is what you people send up here, and that is all you sent."

1.—In what respects was the child life in the days of Jesus different from child life today?

2.—What are the fundamentals in the highest type of an education for children and youth?

3.—What are the central elements in a Christian home life?

4.—How did Jesus find his mission in life, and how shall young people of today find their mission in life?

5.—What great changes take place in youth about the age of 12 and how should these changes be best directed?

6.—How should parental authority and liberty of self-development in children be related?

Clericus says, "Life with Jesus was not idleness, or wealth, or pleasure, but service in the Father's house. Many people waste a good portion of their life in learning the purpose of that life, and some even die without knowing why they were born."

CAPITAL CITY SELECT TEAM HERE SUNDAY

Merchants to Meet Picked
Team of Columbus Sand
Lot Stars at Mason's

The pick of Columbus' sandlot football teams will invade Circleville Sunday to battle the local Merchants in an effort to break their winning streak of two games over Columbus teams.

Only two teams in the big city will not have players on the team, they are the Mendel Tailors and the Bobb Chevrolets, the class of the grid teams there.

The Merchants have done exceedingly well in their two games to date and have a good chance of defeating this all-star aggregation. In their first contest with very little practice the Pinnerans Clothiers came here with no other idea than to go home on the long end of a big score. They were decidedly surprised when Circleville held them scoreless and in the last quarter pushed over a touchdown to win the contest.

Then came the Fort Hayes Soldiers, after an effort to play the Mack Confectioners fell through. The Soldiers presented a fast well-trained organization but they couldn't get more than one touchdown against the locals, while the Merchants were annexing three. Now the all-star aggregation will invade the local lot. The game has been set for 2:30 p. m. and will be played at the Mason field.

EDDIE WAGNER IN MAIN EVENT OF RING CARD

Franklin Club Show in Memorial Hall, Dec. 7, Promises to be Good One

Eddie Kid Wagner, Chillicothe lightweight battler, will meet an opponent of equal calibre when he tangles with Sammy Mendo of Columbus in the main go at the boxing show which is to be staged at the Memorial Hall under the auspices of the Franklin Athletic Club, Dec. 7.

Wagner is a well known fighter here and has shown a fighting spirit to the fans of Circleville that makes him well liked. His clean sportsmanship and hard fighting have made him the decided favorite of local fans as well as those of Chillicothe. Wagner has fought his way gallantly to the top of the pugilistic ladder in his hometown and is now going to make a bid for the championship of South Central Ohio in the coming fight with Mendo.

Mendo is as yet unknown to the fans of Circleville but in his home town, Columbus, he is known as the "Walloping Wop." He is a small Italian boy with a punch that is dangerous to those who come in contact with it. In his pugilistic career Mendo has fought 32 fights, 24 of which have been won by the kayo route, six by decisions and two draws. He recently gave Eddie Townly the worst beating that young person has ever received in the ring.

Fans will remember that a certain percentage of the gate receipts for these fights will be given to the Circleville Benevolence Society to help the less fortunate children of our city.

Ducats for the fight may be secured early next week.

Well for Youngsters to Learn to Stand Alone

The best thing that can happen to any young person, after receiving sufficient education and technical training, is to be away from home and to stand alone on his or her own feet. Only in this way can young people be sure that they can handle the affairs of life success fully. Not only do they develop a sense of thrift, but with this new found independence they also come into contact with people, and must learn to make decisions, to use their own judgment, to lessen their errors by learning from previous ones. And, everything being equal they learn something of understanding and tolerance and sympathy, so much needed today and always. They learn teamwork and co-operation, to take orders and to give them. They learn the joy of labor and the satisfaction of independence.—Rachel, Newlander in the Household Magazine.

Muddled

Never before had there been such commotion in the little flat, and the most excited person was the sister of the young mother who had just presented her husband with twins. Auntie was wild with delight at being auntie in a double sense, and rushed to the post office for stamps to spread the great tidings.

"Stamps," she jerked, as she reached the counter.

"How many, miss?" inquired the clerk.

"Two," she said joyously.

"What kind?"

"A boy and a girl," she returned, rapturously.

COMMANDER IS FIRST TO FLY OVER 2 POLES

COMMUNICATED HERE During Commander Byrd's flight to the South Pole, he was in constant communication, not only with his base but with New York Times as well.

The expedition was organized at the cost of more than $500,000, most of which was subscribed by public spirited citizens.

Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, in his statement said the Byrd expedition deserved the highest praise, and he extended the pride of the Navy, in which Byrd is a retired officer, in the accomplishment.

Praise also came from F. Truhee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aviation, who said the achievement marked another epoch in the use of heavier than air machines in exploration work. Maj. Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aviation, called the flight a major accomplishment, and paid a tribute to the courage of the Byrd party.

Acting Secretary of State Wilbur Carr, whose department has just replied to a British note sent last November concerning the Byrd flight and laying claim to virtually all of the Antarctic, added his praise. He said the flight was highly gratifying as another example of American pioneering spirit.

PLANE LEAGUE HAS TESTING CONTEST

Members of the local Airplane Model League of America comprising Horace Gilmore, George Ammer, Otis Mader, James Reichelderfer, Tom Conrad, Harold Dresbach, Howard Ater, Tom Kirwin, and advisor R. L. Brehmer met in the Chamber of Commerce rooms Friday evening to test their model planes. The testing was done by puncturing balloons. The balloons were inflated and hung near the ceiling. Pins were put on the propellers of the model planes, and the planes were made to try to puncture or burst the balloons at the top of the ceiling. This was a great sport for the boys, as the boy who burst the greatest number of balloons was named champion. Harold Dresbach, puncturing four, won grand prize.

Aiding International News Service in picking the teams were Douglass W. Miller, director of the new service at Ohio Wesleyan University and Ohio coaches. Miller probably knows more about Buckeye conference football than any other man. He is an official of the Buckeye Intercollegiate Athletic Association and has followed football in that league for several years.

Domestic Illumination The average family spends about $25 per year for electric light. Back in the old days they spent the same amount for candles. And $25 was a lot more money in those days than it is now, the difference being that for your $25 you get over 100 times as much light as did the candle-burners. In the average fair sized living room there will be beaming away of an evening the equivalent of 260 candles.

TOY SOLDIERS

A news story about Christmas toy displays reveals the popularity of military games. There is said to be an unexpected rush for lead soldiers of the better kind. Parents say their children want soldiers in green coats and iron helmets. The war is to be fought all over again on the floors of American homes.

Probably there is nothing to be done about this, although the sight of whole armies of toy soldiers in store windows brings sad and solemn thoughts to many minds. Statesmen like Hoover and Macdonald are striving in every possible way to promote peace and prevent war. Citizens in many lands are reading such true and terrible war books as "All Quiet on the Western Front" and weeping over them. Physical wrecks from the world war still lie in our hospitals. A shipload of soldier's remains has just been brought back to America from Russia. Efforts are being made to win pensions for service men and their families. And at the same time toy soldiers come back for the sport of children who know nothing about war and its horrors.

Thrills and glory and victories and heroism are what small boys get in their mimic campaigns and battles, so war becomes a great adventure once more.

Would children ask for such toys and amusements if they didn't see them in the stores? Is it right to encourage these childish war games? Or doesn't it matter? There is something here for parents and peace-lovers to think about, at least.

COMMUNITY FUNDS

Cleveland is the biggest city that uses the Community Fund plan regularly, with apparently increasing efficiency and success. The other day that city ended its eleventh annual Fund campaign with a total chest of $4,654,357.97 the largest sum ever collected in such a way, for such a purpose, anywhere in the world.

An interesting feature of this achievement is that there were 501,605 contributors to the fund half of the cities population. This year, too, 17,138 more persons gave to the fund than last year indicating that the public is increasingly convinced of the soundness of the system.

There are critical individuals in any community who find flaws in great and successful enterprises. There were undoubtedly people in Cleveland who point out a case here and there where the welfare agencies supported by the Fund seem to have fallen down on their humanitarian job. There are far more citizens who see that on the whole the welfare work of the community is better done now than ever before, that the good accomplished far outweighs occasional mistakes.

In the 10 preceding campaigns Cleveland has raised more than $40,000,000 which was poured into helpful, necessary, humanitarian service. This year's fund results show that Clevelanders have been convinced of the usefulness and efficiency of that work.

ANOTHER ABILITY TEST

"The Masked Hostess" by BLAIR STEVENSON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

An old abandoned Long Island estate, "The Firs," is the only inheritance Nathalie Van Slaick finds has been left by her once wealthy sportsman father, "Happy Jack" Van Slaick. Repulsed by her rich aunt, Mrs. Pemberton Swayne, Nathalie, in desperation, catches a check knowing she has no funds in the bank. With South American, Capt. Ramon Stefano, who has taken over "The Firs" supposedly to entertain his wealthy friends. She does this on one condition, that she is to remain a secret. John Sloan, young lawyer, assigned to care for Nathalie's affairs, has fallen in love with Nathalie. Without her knowledge, Sloan has made good the false check. He warns her of this strange venture she is about to embark upon, fearing her romantic nature will force her to capitulate to Stefano's charm and the spirit of adventure attending her unusual position. Neither of them knows that Stefano is without funds and is being financed by Ferris, a New York ex-policeman, who wishes to locate Nathalie and obtain possession of "The Firs," knowing that a new state road will enhance its value. Long Island's wealthiest society people attend the opening of "The Firs" and are intrigued by the Masked Hostess, who is disguised as a black-haired senorita. Nathalie is delighted when none of her friends recognize her. Nathalie, fascinated by the handsome Stefano, finds herself in his arms, but quickly eludes him as his lips reach for hers.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX

WHEN Nathalie struggled free of Stefano's embrace in the darkness of the fire outside the house and hastened back among the dancers, it was only because, with her arms encircling her and with her eyes closed, there had arisen before her suddenly the spectre of Ferris at Southampton—an officer in plain clothes as she supposed and armed with a warrant for her arrest.

His image, and the fear that he would yet discover her hiding place and drag her to justice, was her shadow until the party of which she had been the acknowledged queen and intriguing mystery broke up long after dawn, and Stefano, without trying to gain another moment alone with her, had driven away with the other revelers.

She had lain awake thinking of him and of the man she believed to be hunting her down until nearly noon, and had then awakened after an hour's fitful sleep to more anguished meditation on her strange situation and the danger which for all she knew, was closing in upon her.

She pushed the call button beside her bed.

The maid's arms were full of flowers, as they had been the day before, but she had a small parcel as well and a note from Stefano written at the Meadowbrook Club.

It began simply, "Good morning and happiness, and then:

"I have been thinking again of how solitary and depressing your days must be at 'The Firs,' and so have evolved a plan. Of course you drive? You must get out and about. So I have sent a roadster to you in the packet which accompanies this pair of driving goggles with flanges so wide that they will be as full a disguise for you on the roads as though you wore your half-mask, and at the same time attract no special attention."

"The packet contains also a bank note. Call it an advance or what you will—what does it matter? One hopes only that it may be convenient. I find that I am compelled to send it as it is instead of placing it to your account, for you with Pound at Brookville only to be reminded by him that I did not know your name and that the bank did not have your signature. So there is no choice but for you to go there personally. May I hope you will enjoy the drive over and change of scene?"

A flush of pleasure was on Nathalie's face as she opened the packet, for it contained a pair of driving goggles sewn to an oval of silk mask and a thousand dollar bill.

Her heart leaped at the sight of the bill, for she had been represented twice the sum when she had received from the Waldorf-Astoria when she cashed a valuable check there the day she fled from New York.

She was downstairs in twenty minutes, her whole mind filled with a plan of hurrying to Brookville, depositing her money in the bank, and then repaying—the did not know quite how—the Waldorf-Astoria or her New York bank if it was that institution which had suffered a loss through her.

Stefano's car was at the door. It was a rather conspicuous car, a long, low sporting affair with a high hood and a yellow body trimmed with black. She saw at once that in a car of that model and gave her a pass and check book.

She left the bank, depressed because she did not feel free to call up the Waldorf-Astoria at the nearest pay station. She was too inexperienced to know that with funds in bank she could have done so—and in addition have had cleaned up the whole state of facts which were unknown to her about the check; how Sloan had made it good, and the hotel had not been put to loss, and that the law had no case against her and its trailers were not seeking her out.

"The day after tomorrow, though, I can communicate with them," she said to herself as she went out to the street.

Stefano's bright and high-powered car stood at the curb. A well-dressed man standing with them turned at her step and raised his hat to her. It was John Sloan.

"I'm fighting," he said at once and with the pleasantest of smiles, "against temptation. The human being in me wants to beg you to take him for a drive and let him talk to you, but the lawyer in me is working today and doesn't dare to let you take his concentrated attention off his work. Did Pound mention to you that I'd been in?"

Nathalie took her head. "He wouldn't," Sloan agreed, "any more than he'd mention to me that he knew you were dancing in your own house with a mask on. He omitted to do that. He thinks he's as deep as a well. But I've met his breed before; generally in small towns. I'm going to see if I can't surprise him."

Nathalie looked her own surprise. "In what way? I don't believe I see."

"Neither do I," assented Sloan cheerfully. "If you can't see a thing so far, although for the last two days I've been quietly investigating here in Brookville and one or two other places. All I've turned up so far is that Pound is in a great hurry with his foreclosure suit and we knew that a month ago. But why the hurry? What motive is there under his almost indecent haste to get his clutches on your property? Maybe nothing but blind greed. Possibly—but I've determined to find out before sale day."

He turned the subject. "Is everything going all right? And you have my telephone addresses, the day and night? Fine. Keep them both where you can always find them. And now please drive away from me. I'm working."

DR. COPELAND SAYS— HEALTH IS FOUNDED ON DAILY EXERCISE

You Can't Shirk Your Duty to Your Muscles, Says Dr. Copeland, and Still Expect Them to Go Right Ahead Serving Your Body.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Of one type or another, the muscles have most to do with the make-up of the body. The heart is a muscle, or a mass of muscles. Almost all of the substance of the alimentary tract consists of muscles. These contract in waves, pushing the food through the canal.

DR. COPELAND.

The organs that are not muscle are surrounded by muscles. If the muscles are weak and flabby and re-axed, they cannot do the required work of digestion. They must be hard, tense and strong, in order that we may have good health.

The only way to keep these muscles strong is to use them, to exercise them. Vigorous exercise every day for everyone must be the rule if the muscular "tone" is to be maintained. Walking, running, jumping, dancing, games in which the body is fully played, are the ideal exercises which everybody should practice.

Proper food must be the rule. We need certain roughage in food, bulky foods, the great part of which travel through the colon and encourage the muscular action of the bowels. This effect is known as "peristalsis," that wave-like action of the muscles of the abdomen. These bulky foods are necessary, in the proportion of three to one, to stimulate the muscles of the bowels to proper action.

Let us consider this peristaltic movement in the intestines. Like other muscles, unless they are given work to do, the intestinal muscles become flabby and weak.

The muscles making up the outer layers of the intestines run lengthwise while those on the inside are ring-shaped. Both sets work together in a wonderful way, producing the motions which carry the food along through the intestines.

Fruits and vegetables, with their skins, aid greatly in stimulating this action. Also the unrefined wheat and oats are helpful in preventing constipation. The acids of fruits are stimulating to the intestinal tract, minerals having great value in their fruits except banana content. All rules laid down by hygienists are certainly not beneficial by obstinate constipation. There are plenty of authorities to charge constipation with having a real part in their production.

The ordinary case of constipation can be prevented and cured by persistent effort and will power. If the patient will observe the ordinary rules laid down by his physician, or the knowledge which he may have for the asking, good health will be his reward for well-doing. The first step is to develop the general muscular tone.

Answers to Health Queries

M. M. Q.—How can I reduce? 2—What is good for a chapped face? 3—What should a girl of seventeen, five feet two inches tall, weigh?

A.—Eat very sparingly of starches, sugars and fats. Get regular, systematic exercise. A gradual reduction in the amount of food consumed, with the regular exercise, will work wonders in most cases.

A.—In treating bronchitis, constipation must be corrected. Build up the general health and you will not be as susceptible to colds. For other information send a self-addressed stamped envelope and repeat your question.

J. A. R. Q.—Are salt baths good for reducing? A.—No.

A. K. E. Q.—What do you advise for bronchitis?

A.—Consult an orthopedist.

GEORGE H. Q.—What is the easiest and most convenient method of making the drinking water safe when at various places on tour?

A.—Boil for twenty minutes.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

Al Hill, former acquaintance of many of New York's gangsters, is playing the role of a crook in "Dark Streets," the new first National-Vitaphone picture showing at the Cliftona theatre.

Hill enjoyed the unique position of being an "O. K. pal" of hundreds of shady characters without participating in their rackets. He was owner of the Crescent and Cosmopolitan night clubs in New York, which were favorite rendezvous of the underworld.

The actor left New York for a career in vaudeville and in musical comedy, playing a prominent role in the London production of "Keep Smiling." He came to Hollywood about two years ago and has taken roles in many film-unworld stories, including "Alibi," "Roadhouse," and "Me Gangster."

"Dark Streets" features Jack Mulhall in a dual dialogue role, the first in talking pictures. He is both cop and crook, brothers. Lila Lee appears in the feminine lead. Frank Lloyd directed from Richard Connell's story, "Pat and Mike."

AT THE MET

In the short period of seven days the Columbia crew built a complete flying field at San Diego, or "Flight," the all-talking epic of the air coming to the Met theatre on Sunday, it was necessary to have a flying field in a location between two mountains, so situated as to make taking off and landing most hazardous.

Although the location was found an inspection of the terrain made the task of constructing a field almost impossible. The rocks, boulders undulating ground, barrancas dry river beds, broken ground and high tropical weeds stumped the movie crew. But, Director Frank R. Capra was not ready to give in yet.

Two hundred and twenty men were set to work with the advice and help of experts from the United States Marine Flying Base at San Diego. Tractors, trucks and equipment were put to use and in seven working days that stretch of impossible ground had been leveled off. Over a million gallons of water were used to wet down the field. An eighty foot barranca was completely filled in and covered over for a distance of more than 100 feet. A coral flying base for officers and members of the "Flight" cast were erected. Ten days after Director Frank R. Capra had selected the site, the field was completely wired and Jack Holt and Ralph Graves were working on the thrilling sequences of the film. Lila Lee plays the leading feminine role.

AT THE GRAND

Those who enjoy underworld cafe brawls will get their fantasies satisfied at the Grand Saturday when Jack Dougherty and Virginia B. Faire appear in "The Body Punch."

The story is of love and adventure and of a man who saves a girl from such an underworld battle.

A silent and a talking comedy is also listed at the Grand.

McCormick's Doctor, Freudian Disciple, Gets $300 a Day

The controversy which has brought attorneys and medical experts from all parts of the world in connection with the fight for custody of Stanley McCormick's $50,000,000 estate, hinges largely on the employment of Dr. Edward J. Kempf, New York neurologist (above) and ardent disciple of Sigmund Freud, Vienna psychologist and originator of psychoanalysis. In the thirty months since Dr. Kempf has been in charge of Stanley McCormick, he has received $10,000 a month.

Compass Changes

At Churchill on Hudson bay, the magnetic compass needle pointed 24 degrees west of north in 1700, one degree west in 1800 and 10 degrees east in 1900. In other words, during two centuries the needle changed its direction by 34 degrees.

HOW TO IMPROVE THE RED AND BLACK

By Gerald Horn

The Red and Black in the daily newspaper may be improved. I should think since it has been given additional space. We would like to make it more interesting and hold the public's attention.

Students, why not write letters to the editor of Red and Black about high school affairs? Why not submit poems, feature articles, and editorials? They would interest the students as well as the public.

I should think in time to come, the Red and Black could get a page to devote to high school affairs if it makes the present amount of space as interesting as the former. The public likes to read and learn what is going on inside of the high school.

ARE WE READY FOR AN HONOR SYSTEM?

By Dorothy Clarke

There are many and many ways by which our school can be improved, but I would choose as the first thing necessary towards the improvement and advancement in its standing that each student learn, become accustomed with, and practice the meaning of the word Honor. Would an Honor System work successfully here?

More and more the Honor System, which has made such excellent records for itself in prison reform work, is being put into practice in the general educational process.

The boy who is put "on his honor" not to cheat in an examination and then freed from distasteful policing as he prepares his paper, has accomplished the one and most outstanding step toward his success in life.

It is a keen sense of honor that keeps people faithful to their work when there is no one near to watch, or when their neglect would never be discovered.

The honor strong enough to withstand a temptation that whispers "No one will ever be the wiser," is an honor which has been put to the supreme test.

Therefore, I do not see why, we, the students of Circleville High School do not, adopt the "Honor System" and have our school referred to as the school with the students who conquered the policy of "we are to be watched" by the practice of Honor.

CAN YOU HELP TO SOLVE THIS PROBLEM?

By Dorothy Stoy

Since the student body of Circleville High School is growing rapidly there is a tendency to enlarge and improve our school and one of the things that needs the most immediate attention is our commercial department. Several attempts have been made towards solving this seating problem, but there has not been any truly successful one yet. There has been several suggestions such as, taking a larger room, putting in more desks and leaving smaller space for standing room, but how can we do that without more seat capacity? All business classes are overcrowding their equipment because more and more students are becoming interested in commercial subject.

Classes in stenography, business English, and advanced English have eliminated this problem by using extra chairs. Several new typewriters have been purchased but there are only 16 typewriters for 106 students to use every day. In the other department there are only 17 desks to seat 129 pupils when we have just 7 periods a day. In all there are 235 commercial students who are striving to gain a place in the future business world.

One person teaches all of these pupils every day in the week. A larger room has been used for the seventh period bookkeeping class which contains 36 seats, but other classes are held in their regular room. Pupils in the seventh period typing class are left upon their honor. Commercial classes should be given more space in one department in order to secure efficient work.

AUDITORIUM BLINDS HUNG

Dark blinds purchased from Wayne Potter, Columbus, by the board of education were hung in the auditorium Tuesday.

The blinds were purchased for the use of darkening the room while showing moving pictures. The board also hopes to purchase new light blinds in the near future.

SEE SPANISH DANCER AT MEMORIAL HALL

Mrs. D. Adrian Yates, Mrs. Lorin Lutz, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heffner, Mrs. Charles E. Groce, Mrs. Elgar Barrere, Miss Grace Moodie, Miss Harriet Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lewis, Mrs. Noah Weaver, Mrs. Clark Will, Mrs. James Moffitt, Mrs. Ned J. Groom, Miss Bernadine Lutz, Miss Miriam Ruggles, Miss Helen Marion and Miss Abbe Mills Clarke were patrons of the Women's Music Club at the Memorial Hall in Columbus Friday night. This number was presented by La Argentina, famous exponent of Spanish dancing art.

De Segovia appeared with his Spanish guitar. The dancer, La Argentina is reputed to be the supreme representative of the best terpsichorean art as it is known throughout the Iberian Peninsula.

The dancer's costumes alone would constitute a huge exhibition. Their number and richness would defy the memory of a costumer.

Miguel Berdon, pianist, substituted at the keyboard for Senaria Perez whose appearance with the dancer had been previously announced. Senor Berdon, dark, modest and somewhat stooped from hours spent over the keyboard, started the recital with "El Puerto" by Albeniz than whom no one has written better Spanish music for the piano, not even the rapidly advancing De Falla.

its manifold colorings. Her wrist movements were dire and snaky. She was the fatalistic sorceress.

One of the undoubted hits of the entertainment was the "Legation," or peasant dance of the province of Toledo. She did the naive peasant type to perfection not even coming out of the character when she acknowledged applause.

It reminded one of these Dutch dances we see. Clumsily swinging arms, feet that are heavy, stupid gawking and staring, idiotic grins and all that is gauche.
